THE Loan Ordinance is proclaimed in Saturday's Gazette as having received Her Ma- tion of the Messageries Maritimes to establish jesty's approval and allowance. We hope one of the first measures introduced in the forthcoming session of the Legislative Coun- ning for some months past. cil will be a Bill to amend this measure. The Ordinance provides for the contraction of a sterling loan of £200,000 at four per cent. The Government has been advised by the best financial authorities that there would on, and that the Dutch Government has anly at five per cent., and the Finance Com- being deemed Lutch subjects. mittee of the Legislative Council recommended the adoption of the latter course. of the recommendation and directed that the ingly done. DOLLA PODRIDA, A statesman, at a banquet, in proposing the health of the clergy, said that " in these days olergymen were expected to have the wisdom and learning of a Jeremy Taylor." He was next day reported to have said. " In these days clergymen were expected to have the wisdom and learning of a journeyman tailor." The Madrid correspondent of one of the London daily papers telegraphed recently that much excitement had prevailed there, owing to a prediction, which had been circulated broadcast, that the world was to come to an end on June 24th. The mosquito of the sea, which was to sweep the ironolad off the face of the ocean, is daily losing its reputation, and we should not be surprised if, after this disaster, the small boats should be confined to service on the coast and in landlocked waters. Bigger ships may venture more, but little craft should hug the shore. The French Government have made an evasive contradiction of the report, which confirms the belief that it is true.

The operatio impresario Strakosch offered herin his time £10,000 for a six months' concert tour, which she however, refused, in order to take the veil and bury herself and the enormous fortune which was in her voice within the gloomy walls of a convent. It is even said that she was never allowed to sing in the choir, for she would grow vain and repent what she had done. It is more than likely that this brutal restriction had the opposite effect, and that, deprived of the right to use the voice which she had dedicated to her God, it broke hor

A "piano made of pretty girls" is the latest novelty from Pittsburg, and perhaps it will be tried here for charity bazaars. It formed part of a strawberry and ico-cream festival, given in the North Avenue M. E. Church, Allegheny, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society, for the benefit of the Wood's Run M. E. Church. The "humaniphone," was kept a great secret from all who were not willing to place in the doorkeeper's hand the magic bit of silver which opened the door to the ante-room on the right. Upon entering the room, the heads and shoulders of several young ladies were visible above a screen extending the length of the room. All the young ladies were masks, and from their necks hung suspended a cord, on which was printed a musical note. It did not take the audience long to discover that the "humaniphone" was simply a human piano. It was played by Miss Nellie Schoyer. With a wand she walked to and fro, and each young lady uttered a different note as she touched her with a wand. In this novel manner Miss Schoyer played "Home, sweet home." Yankee Doodle," and a number of other

A good story is told of the Comte de Béarn, s well-known Parisian, who has just been gathered to his fathers. He was at one time an inveterate card-player, and always came home from his club in the early hours of the morning. The Countess complained and threatened all sorts of things unless he reformed. So the Count had a lay-figure made, and ordered his valet to place it in his bed every night about eleven. His wife, who was in the habit of peeping into his bedroom to see if he were there, was thus imposed on for some time. One night, however, having important news to communicate to him, she resolved to take him up, and thus discovered the trick. The Countess said nothing, but determined to turn the tables on her husband. She accordingly placed the layfigure upright behind the door. The Count, returning home as usual in the darkness of the night, knocked down the figure, and the nex second the whole house was aroused by ories of "Thieves! thieves! help! help!" Of course when lights were brought, the Count stood abashed, and, asking his wife's pardon, swore he would turn over a new leaf. The story says he kept his word.

Miss Victoria Moore, the daughter of Mr. G. M. Moore, the famous "bones" in the Moore and Burgess Minstrels, laid the stone of a new musi hall the other day at Battersea. Mr. Moore speech on the occasion is amusing. Here it as reported in the Era : - " Ladies and gentlemen lords, nobles, counts, dukes, duchesses, earls, not forgetting comedians, managers, and artists-J does me good to see such a gathering as this come all the way to see the laying of the foundation-stone of a hall which I hope going to be a hig success, and to do good t Battersea. This place is freehold. I hav bought it for my children, and as I intento do all I can to improve this district, trust the district will return the complimen and give us the support we intend to deserve I intend to put on the stage a first-class enter tainment, and to give a good return for the money charged for admission. I shall put my son and daughter here, and their prospects. believe, are very bright. My daughter has ha experience at the bar, and my son has had college education: They shall sell the best of everything, and they shall offer every inducement to people who come once to come again. I've written 150 songs, but I don't know a note of music. That shows brains. My architect is one of the best in England, and my builder is a. gentlemen and an artist, and a relation; and when this little hall is up you will be pleased with it. I will now ask you to drink to The Ladies,' and shall couple with the toast my wife and daughters."

ENGLISH AND CHINESE DICTIONARY.

WITH THE PURTI AND MANDARIN

An Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, published at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong.

For comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extense. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both

To the illustrate the vast scope of the work following facts are submitted for consideration:

Chalmers' Vocabulary pontains about 16,000

Chinese characters, and Medburst's English and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese characters. Again, despite all the grammars and other elementary works as yet published, the quires examples to display the various applications and equivalents of different words which have one general masning, Of these examples this work contains more than five times as many as any other Dictionary hitherto pub-the work will be found indispensable to all

Europeans residing in China and to the natives

POST-OFFICE NOTICES.

When Correspondence has been mis-sent or delayed (both of which are liable to happen operationally) all that the addressee need do is to note on the cover. Sent to _____, or Received at 7 p.m., or as the case may be, and forward it, without any other writing whatever, to the Postmaster-General. This should be acted on the first time cause of complaint occurs; it is a mistake to let such matters pass for fear of giving trouble, a course which generally gives more trouble in the end.

LOCAL DELIVERY.—No delivery is attempted on board Ship, at the Peak, Kowloon, Aberdeen, do., nor at any private house (even though named in the address) when there is a place of business nearer, at which delivery can be effected.
